—Has Not Joined Tory Party

Mr. McGillicuddy, who has been the central figure in the Oliver charges at Ottawa and who has crossed Canada with a series of meetings in which he has been the main attraction, said the minister of the interior is in the city today, too, as he puts it, "rest up after his long journey."

Mr. McGillicuddy says he has made no arrangement for any meeting in Ottawa, and that he is not in the city. "I understand that Frank Oliver asked in the Thistle Bink the other evening for some one to come forward and accept of an invitation from Frank Oliver," he says.

He adds, "I notice that The Bulletin has said that I was speaking at 'Pony meetings.' I want to say that I have never been to any of these meetings east or west. The 'Seduction meeting' at Regina was a very different affair from the others were like. Here is the bill. It indicates the character of the meeting."

He then reads the following notice: "A public meeting will be held in the Empress Theatre on Saturday, September 10, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing the charges will be thoroughly discussed by Mr. D. McGillicuddy of Edmonton, and the Hon. Mr. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, who caused the dissolution of parliament. The meeting will open at 7 o'clock."

If he wants to hear these reasons and wants to hear the letter, I will be glad to do so. I am not an unwilling that he should have the opportunity."

"I am glad," he says, "to hear Mr. Macdillibee, 'are entirely off my own bat, I do not claim to represent the party in any way, and I am not going in Saturday night."

FROM GREAT BRITAIN

One of the most notable features of immigration to Canada from Great Britain this year, according to J. Obed Smith, superintendent of immigration in the British Isles who is in Edmonton with the members of the British Press association, is the fact that it is exceeding the immigration of Britons to the United States and French residents leave for Saskatoon where he will hold a meeting in the interests of the organized carpenters and he will visit also, Prince Albert, Moose Jaw and Regina on his way to Winnipeg. After attending a mass meeting in the Gateway city he will return to Minneapolis.

COLORADO ELKS IN REUNION

Mr. Smith alluded to this invitation to the efforts of the Canadian immigration department in the British Isles. "The figures for almost every year prior to 1916" said Mr. Smith, "show a great enlargement from Britain to the United States than to Canada. The tide was turned in 1916 for the first time, and since then the number of visitors of this year 190 British people came to Canada for every sixty that went to

NORDICA AT CAMP MEETING.

After an absence of over twenty-five years from the home of her childhood, Marie, Mrs. Lillian Nordica returned there a fortnight ago and gave a complimentary concert for her townspeople and former neighbors. Many of the weather-beaten farmers and their wives were as Mrs. Lillian Nordica, to them just "Lillian," sang "Home Sweet Home" in the hall where her grandfather preached for many years. The prima donna was visibly affected by her reception and gave of her best to her old-time friends, her present ranging from "Annie Laurie" to selections from the operas in which she has won world-wide fame. Another interesting incident during the singer's Marie Nordica was her visit to the Allen camp meeting grounds, where she sang "Nearer My God to Thee" to the campers, her wonderful voice it is said, bringing many to the "Merry" song. Nordica's grandfather, Camp Meeting John Allen, was a famous clairvoyant, who for many years regularly followed the summer camp meetings to bargain with the campers by swapping horses just outside their tents. One day he happened to wonder within range of the preacher's voice and was himself converted. From then until his death "Camp Meeting John" atoned for his early years of waywardness by preaching the gospel with great fervency. Mrs. Nordica's concert and song were in honor of his memory. Nordica will sing here on November first.

WORLD-FAMED ARTISTS COMING.

Two operatic stars who are to scintillate during the coming season in the New York Metropolitan opera house, will appear on their engagement in this city in the Thistle rink on Friday, October 6th. Both of these singers have firmly established their positions in the field of music and their coming should prove an event of importance in its attendance for the coming season.

Efforts to form a concert organization of exceptional worth has resulted in the subscription of the eminent vocalists, Riccardo Martin, and his wife, Mrs. Lillian Nordica, to them just "Lillian," sang "Home Sweet Home" in the hall where her grandfather preached for many years. The prima donna was visibly affected by her reception and gave of her best to her old-time friends, her present ranging from "Annie Laurie" to selections from the operas in which she has won world-wide fame. A. A. U. TO LEGISLATE AGAINST TRAMP ATHLETE

New York, Sept. 18.—The annual convocation of the A. A. U. next November is expected to pass a few stringent rules which will do away with the tramp athlete, the appearance money grafter and the tourist. James E. Sullivan, president of the Metropolitan association, has planned a rule which will give the authorities power similar to that in England. That is, an athlete can be refused registration without reason; can be suspended without trial or reason, and a club refusing information about an athlete can be expelled without reason. All this is provided that the authorities are satisfied that they have the goods on the man or the club.

IT GROWS HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "23" Hair Tonic and see it do its work. If it does not relieve scalp-itching, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair, and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store, A. Archibald.

AUSTRIAN BARON VISITING EDMONTON

EN ROUTE TO PEACE RIVER WHERE HE MAY ENGAGE IN RANCHING — PLEASED WITH COUNTRY

On his way into the north country on a trip of exploration which will occupy his time until late in the fall, Baron Othmar von Bodo, of Austria-Hungary, is in Edmonton. He will embark on his trip into the north country early next week, going west from Edmonton through the Yellowhead pass, where he will meet his two children who will escort him to the G.P.C. contractors, and thence from Moose Lake west along the Peace to Giesbrecht pasture over which he will pass on his way to the Peace river country.

"I have heard a great deal about the Peace river country, especially about the land lying close to the mountains which I understand is particularly adapted for ranching," said the baron last evening.

"Early this summer I made up my mind I would see it for myself, but I was surprised to find when I arrived in Edmonton that I was still so far from my journey's end."

Baron Bodo has been in America during the past fourteen years, prospecting in the Kentucky and Nevada coal fields, and during that time he has been associated in his mind with excessive quantities of ice and snow, and that for a long time he could scarcely believe that anything of value could be grown so far north. His trip to this section of the country has convinced him to the contrary, however.

DISTRICT COURT

Judgment in a number of other cases which came up for trial at recent sessions of the district court, was handed down this morning by his honor Judge Taylor.

In the case of Byron May vs. Trebleman, in which action was brought to recover the sum of $25.00, for the sale of sixty-six photographs, his long or handed down judgment dismissing the claim. Leave to appeal was granted.

SEIGE GUN OF NEW TYPE FOR GERMANY

LIGHT ARTILLERY WILL PRECEDE INFANTRY IN BATTLES IN THE FUTURE

(Globe Cable Service)

Berlin, Sept. 16.—Some interesting experiments have been carried out by the German military authorities at Dornitz with a new type of siege gun constructed by the firm of Krupp. The new gun is an improvement on an idea much used by the Japanese in the siege of Port Arthur, and is designed to aid the advance of infantry storming an entrenched position.

Military experts in Germany have for a long time been puzzling over the problem of how the long range artillery of an army could render efficient support to its own advance infantry fight up to the trenches of a fortified position. According to present "siege technique" the artillery of an attacking army has to cease bombarding the enemy's entrenchments as soon as the storming infantry gets to close quarters, otherwise the stormers are likely to be hit down by their own guns from the rear. This cessation of the attacking bombardment enables the attacking force, which is thus deprived of the support of its own artillery just at the moment when it must stand in need of it.

The new gun has been devised to overcome this difficulty. It has an extremely narrow, pointed bore, and is of very light construction, easily carried by two men, and is intended to be carried in the front lines of the attacking infantry. The most remarkable feature is its projectile, which consists of a "bush" of great diameter, loaded with a very powerful explosive mixture. The bush is of far greater diameter than the bore of the gun which fires it, and is provided with a long stick-like tail in loaded into the barrel of the gun, its lower end, which is entered to a wall or partition-like barrier, resting on the gun-charge at the bottom of the barrel.

The bush itself merely lies on the gun muzzle, quite outside the bore, the firing head, the firing stick-like tail serves to keep the bush in the proper direction of flight, and only detaches itself and flies to earth after a certain distance has been covered, leaving the bush to pursue its course alone. The experiments have shown that a reasonable precision can be obtained with the new missile up to a distance of 300 to 400 yards, and the bush itself, when, owing to its large capacity, is capable of great destruction, serves not only to prevent the defenders from their own work, but also to make great breaches in their entrenchments or fortifications.

At the same time, experiments have been carried out at Dornitz with a new form of hand grenade, designed to effect the same purpose.

(Globe Cable Service)

Berlin, Sept. 16.—Some interesting experiments have been carried out by the German military authorities at Dornitz with a new type of siege gun constructed by the firm of Krupp. The new gun is an improvement on an idea much used by the Japanese in the siege of Port Arthur, and is designed to aid the advance of infantry storming an entrenched position.

Military experts in Germany have for a long time been puzzling over the problem of how the long range artillery of an army could render efficient support to its own advance infantry fight up to the trenches of a fortified position. According to present "siege technique" the artillery of an attacking army has to cease bombarding the enemy's entrenchments as soon as the storming infantry gets to close quarters, otherwise the stormers are likely to be hit down by their own guns from the rear. This cessation of the attacking bombardment enables the attacking force, which is thus deprived of the support of its own artillery just at the moment when it must stand in need of it.

The new gun has been devised to overcome this difficulty. It has an extremely narrow, pointed bore, and is of very light construction, easily carried by two men, and is intended to be carried in the front lines of the attacking infantry. The most remarkable feature is its projectile, which consists of a "bush" of great diameter, loaded with a very powerful explosive mixture. The bush is of far greater diameter than the bore of the gun which fires it, and is provided with a long stick-like tail in loaded into the barrel of the gun, its lower end, which is entered to a wall or partition-like barrier, resting on the gun-charge at the bottom of the barrel.

The bush itself merely lies on the gun muzzle, quite outside the bore, the firing head, the firing stick-like tail serves to keep the bush in the proper direction of flight, and only detaches itself and flies to earth after a certain distance has been covered, leaving the bush to pursue its course alone. The experiments have shown that a reasonable precision can be obtained with the new missile up to a distance of 300 to 400 yards, and the bush itself, when, owing to its large capacity, is capable of great destruction, serves not only to prevent the defenders from their own work, but also to make great breaches in their entrenchments or fortifications.

At the same time, experiments have been carried out at Dornitz with a new form of hand grenade, designed to effect the same purpose.

POWER OF THE BALLOT MATTER OF GEOGRAPHY

Winnipeg with 150,000 people has one member in the Dominion house, Vancouver with the same population has one member, the Thunder Bay constituency has 70,000 population and 18,000 actual voters to one member, Calgary has 50,000 population to one member and Edmonton has the same with quite probably 6,000 voters in the city alone.

The basic unit, one-sixty-fifth of the population of the province of Quebec, is approximately 29,000 for each member.

In Eastern Canada there are constituencies where the population is scarcely more than half the basic unit; that is to say, where 15,000 people elect a member.

In other words, there are parts of the Dominion where the electors have twice as much representation as they are entitled to under the act, while there are other parts where they have only one-quarter the representation they are entitled to under the act.

The practical effect of this is that there are some places in the east where the vote of one elector has more weight in the affairs of the Dominion than have the votes of four, six, eight, or even ten in some constituencies in the west.

Western Canadians who think this is a free country with democratic institutions will find some food for thought in a contemplation of the practical effects of a failure to redistribute.

REMOVABLE TOPS NOT GOOD TO HAVE AROUND

Here is a clause from the Dominion Elections Act:

Section 255K—Everyone who manufactures, constructs, imports into Canada, has in possession, supplies to any election officer, or uses for the purposes of an election, or causes to be manufactured, constructed, imported into Canada, supplied to any election officer, or used for the purpose of any election, any ballot paper containing or including any compartment, appliance, device or mechanism by which a ballot paper may or could be secretly placed or stored therein, or, having been deposited during polling, may be secretly diverted, misplaced, effected or manipulated; or,

(1) Attempts to commit any offence specified in this section, shall be disqualified from voting at any election for a term of eight years thereafter, and guilty of an indictable offence, and liable, if he is a returning officer, election clerk, deputy returning officer, poll clerk, or other officer engaged in the election, to imprisonment, without the alternative of a fine, for a term not exceeding five years and not less than one year, with or without hard labor, and if he is any other person to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years, with or without hard labor.

Deputy returning officers, etc., can look it over. It means that any one of them found with one of those ballot boxes with the removable tops in his possession is likely to go to jail for five years.

PARTY MANAGEMENT ASSISTS THE OPPOSITION

If there is any truth at all in the stories the conservatives tell of ballot boxes with removable tops left lying around the station platforms at half a dozen points in Alberta, then what the liberal party does require in this province is a new set of political managers.

Nothing short of a lunacy commission could properly diagnose the case of a bunch of managers who, with success as nearly certain as elections ever can be, would throw off their chances by introducing methods which, when found out, must mean a terrible loss to the party all over the Dominion.

There is one class of political conscience which justifies the means by the ends, just so long as it is their own party. But in this case the end was practically assured and the means were entirely superfluous.

If this is the kind of party management given the liberal party under the supreme command of Frank Oliver and Senator Talbot, then the sooner the liberal party shakes out such managers the better for the party. Their plain, unvarnished idiosyncrasy is a greater asset to the opposition than all the work the opposition ever did or ever could hope to do.

JUST PARAGRAPHS

The city starting now to figure out plans for next year's work is all right in a way, but what guarantee is there that the city will not be pretty nearly twice the size before the end of next year.

There are three thousand telephones in Edmonton and talk is cheaper here than in any other city in the world—when you do it by phone.

If Cap Sullivan really holds the copyright, district agency for those new-fangled ballot boxes should bring the ancient mariner a fair figure.

"Thugs, Liars, Blackmailers," etc., etc.—From Frank Oliver's reply to D. D. McGillivray. Better hire a hall.

MORALITY

(By Dr. F. Cross)

When Jesus Christ was crucified there was a thief hung upon each side of him. Somewhere I remember to have read that this is a good example of what the world is always doing, to wit: Killing two kinds of persons, those who are ahead of it and those who are behind it, in the moral procession.

This seems to be true. Two varieties of people go to jail, John Bunyan and Jesse James. We note two sorts of disturbers, Owen Lovvick and the chicken thief. We hang John Brown and the murderer of McKinley. Public opinion is a great thing. The current standard of morality is a queer thing. As we look back over history we can see how it has been rising constantly. Time was when it was no sin to own a slave, to keep several assistant wives, to flag one's wife, to hang a man for stealing a lamb, and to burn a young lady alive because she did not believe in the accepted creed. We have outlived these stages. We have reached another, and we think, a higher plane. But we still are intolerant of all who do not keep step.

A man commits a crime, say murder, or theft, or forgery, or burglary. That means he is away behind the moral status of society. So we lock him up, or take his life.

Another man is ahead of our common position. We call him a socialist, or a philosophical anarchist, or a single taxer, or a heretic. In any case he doesn't belong. He has separated himself from the general mass. He has turned out alone, or with a few well-chosen companions. Of course, who are not, nor must; him, nor torture him. That is no longer the style, but we do things to him none the less, in subtler ways. We are as cruel as we can be without offending our modern sensitiveness to causing a disturbance. We quietly freeze him out of the club, lock him out of the church, shut him out of the family and back him off the earth as delicately as we can, without setting him a scuffle. The truth, then, is if you want to belong you must keep step, morally speaking. Society, your fellowman, must not ask that you be right, but just as right as they are. If you are below the level of prevalent morality, you go to the calaboose; if you are above it, you go to the social cold storage room.

If you want success, and to get on in the world, and to get elected, you must be an expert in averages. Great political leaders do not follow their personal convictions, but their class convictions, unless they have succeeded in subverting the former into the latter. Those who have a reputation for great sanctity are those who have been able to substitute for their own personal feelings the feelings of the religious world of their time and place.

If you should therefore upon well his eyes. No man, said the greatest of teachers, will build a house or go to war without first sitting down and counting the cost. There are two distinct, irreconcilable standards of morality: that which is general, and that which is your own. On the one hand the zealot, on the other the individual human spirit, the cannot serve two masters. One must choose.

Generally speaking, I agree with the common run of persons and politicians to wit: That as most of us have not sense enough and strength enough to stand alone, it is better to accept the standards and ideas of those about us, and be comfortable, and get elected. It's safer, especially if you are timid. And it's much more profitable. Your organization will look after you, in this and in the next.

But here's my hand to the lone soul! There are those who simply cannot conform. For some reason the force of individualism within them is too powerful. The man travelled road is sunny, and there's lots of company, but they cannot resist the lure of the Lone Trail. So they kiss their love goodbye. God knows what will become of them, whether they will be frogs or Tobias, whether more akin to him on the middle cross or to them on the side crosses.

Yet, somehow, oh, most respectable

Socialism a Doctrine and a Force

(By C. L. Parkhurst.)

Whatever in particular Socialism may be defined to mean, it at any rate denotes a movement on the part of the masses looking to a large and more responsible share in the world's work. Whether exception we may take to certain views that are put forward under cover of that name, we can always depend upon it that a movement, whether religious, political or economic, that has a host of adherents, contains in it something that is worth preserving.

The broad currents of human thought and action are set in motion by impulses that we can accept as trustworthy. However laboriously we may scan up the stream that run wide and deep, they are sure to find their way to the sea.

Without doubt, then, there is an element in what is variously denominated Socialism that is going to remain as a permanent factor in our civilization, and it is much wiser to seek out the factor and stand true to it and try to promote it than it is to cry down mindlessly everything that exploits itself under that label.

And already Socialism is not only a doctrine about which men dispute; it is also a force working in our economic life. It is not only a possibility of the future, but is also a fact of the present.

That does not mean that the people own the means of production and distribution, but that government, which is another name for the people, is thrusting its hand more and more into the control of industrial and commercial operations, and more and more directing individual enterprise for collective control.

The people, as such, are not furnishing gas and electric light and telephone lines; but government—which is the voice of the people—is settling the question how much the corporations, which are the people's utilities, shall be allowed to charge for their consumption and use.

And the matter of railroad transportation. It is a quiet and peaceable process and one that involves an increasing amount of popular control and dispartments of commercial activity that have hitherto been managed entirely by the owners of the property, for the sake of the people's interests.

All of this is a way of saying that the people are coming to their own; that the underlings are working toward the higher strata of the world's activities and enterprises. That is the very genius of the Socialistic impulse. As has been publicly expressed by Sidney Hillman, an English expert in questions of economics: "The Socialistic extension of the functions and activities of the state is an outstanding political characteristic of the times we live in." The thing is moving and will continue moving.

It is only to be urged upon those who have been derided all the response the share in the world's work which belongs to them that they refrain from embarrassing the course of progress, upon which we have collectively entered, by joining it with demands more extreme than the cause will yet bear without catastrophe.

We want evolution, not revolution. Revolutions have been defined as the "brutalities of progress." We want no brutalities. The most things we gained society. What is best for us

REGISTER PROTEST AGAINST HOME RULE

ULSTER ANNOUNCES ARMS WILL BE RESORTED TO BEFORE
THEY WILL ACCEPT.

(By Timothy J. O'Connor.)
Dublin, Sept. 18.—The correspondent of a London paper at Belfast says:
"The members of the government pretend to make light of the threat that Ulster will fight rather than submit to Home Rule. If they persist in this behalf they will make a serious mistake. It is only necessary to go through Ulster today and discuss the subject with the members of the government to realize the seriousness of the situation. Feeling against Home Rule was high in 1886 and in 1893, but it is even higher today, and those who state anything to the contrary are guilty of misrepresentation."

Irish Unionists United.
What are the prospects of the Irish Unionists being able to resist an Irish parliament? In the first place they number one-third of the Irish population, they possess most of the capital, control all the industries, and they are absolutely united in their determination not to submit to their hereditary enemies. When opposition to a policy amounts almost to a religion, it is difficult to crush it out. Since December last Irish Unionists have been actively preparing for the danger which now confronts them. They are thoroughly organized, and if a parliament were established in Ireland tomorrow it could not enforce its decisions in Ulster without the assistance of the British Army. Even passive resistance on the part of Ulster would make chaos for the Irish Parliament.
Protestant employers have only to refuse employment to Nationalists and tens of thousands of them will be without any means of livelihood. A general resolve not to pay taxes would soon produce a crisis.

The government, in introducing Home Rule, will be introducing a lighted fuse into a powder magazine. The confederation may burst out sooner than they expect. A very bitter feeling growing, and Ulstermen, once they set their teeth, can be very determined and very dogged.

Unionists Have Made Sacrifices.
How solemnly Irish Unionists feel on the subject may be gauged from the fact that they have made since Home Rule became a live question. They have been called upon to maintain an active campaign at their own expense, and in 1893 a large sum of money was expended on procuring arms. Heavy as the money sacrifices have been, Irish Unionists have made them gladly.
As the next few months will show,
there are greater sacrifices still which they will make.

"The Northern Whig," an influential newspaper which represents the views of the professional men and merchan-tants, avowed the other day that the Irish Nationalists "have actually declared that they will neither obey the decrees nor pay the taxes levied by an Irish parliament. This is no empty threat, as Mr. Churchill may find to his cost. It will not be as easy for the government to drag the Irish Protestants as it is for the Nationalists to drag the government. There can be no doubt at this moment which is the duty of Irish Unionists; they must perfect their arrangements and strengthen their organizations, and if a Home Rule bill is passed they will be in a position to set it at defiance."

Irish Protestants Defiant.
These views of a Liberal Unionist newspaper accurately express the feelings of almost every Protestant in Ireland. The "Irish Times," which has always been characterized by its moderate, calm, and deliberate.

"We say deliberately, that if, having regard to what has happened, an attempt is made to pass Home Rule imposed the provisions of the Parliament of a country, the situation will be produced grave than any that this generation or their fathers have seen.
Under such conditions, it will bring not peace but a sword. Its finance unconsidered, its details un-examined, it will come into operation
when those who should unite to work it are furiously hostile. The credit of a country, its very strength, will be further lowered by internal confusions. And, above all, there will be the problem of the future, the future of the Irish people. That understanding opposition, that would wreck a conference and destroy a cause, then resists one inch, must still be considered. The south may proceed with all the arts of government and all the sufferings which it has yet to be shown whether it can produce men with stronger wills."

Civil War a Certainty.
Radicals and Nationalists may laugh and jeer at the threats, but nothing is more certain than that Home Rule will lead to civil war in Ulster—and will lead the government has decided to put through the Home Rule bill.

In a recent address, Mr. Birrell, the chief secretary for Ireland, said: Next bill. I rejoice to think on that occasion that it shall be supported by all my countrymen, with regular attention on the front bench. I here invite but although we may have the full support of a united parliament, we have many forces behind us, still the fight will be a severe one. Study the subject and consider how completely it surrounds conditions since we fought the battle unsuccessfully in 1892, with and in a different Ireland. Thanks to the Conservative party—I am acknowledging everything to all our opponents who had local self-government conferred upon it, and the simple peasants of the west have been entrusted and are now entrusted with all the onerous duties of local self-government. By common consent—can it be believed—they have done it better than their predecessors. A great advance has been made in the whole feeling of local government, and, of reconciling the rights of nationalities

and of individuals, to contribute to a common whole and to a great Empire.

The anniversary of the relief of Londonderry was celebrated there on Saturday with much enthusiasm. Expression train brought thousands of Orange and Apprentice Boys from Belfast and other parts of Ulster.
A procession marched, with bands and banners, to the cathedral where the preacher was Canon Macquidde. He declared that Ulster Protestants had only to stand together in the Orange's pinks to defeat Home Rule. This remark was greeted with applause, and one man shouted "No surrender."

At a demonstration in the afternoon
a telegram of congratulation was sent from the Duke of Abercorn, who added
"I hope every day in Ulster will be spent against Home Rule. You may remember the words, 'We will not have Home Rule.' The time will shortly arrive when action, and words, will be necessary. I hope that your great meeting will prove to the English people that Ulster men and women are more loyal than ever to the Throne of England, and will never permit themselves to be separated from the United Kingdom."

Lady Day Celebration.
Mr. Joseph Devlin, M.P., president of the Irish Home Rule League, was the principal speaker at a demonstration of over 15,000 Nationalists at a Lady Day celebration in Ballyhoey Co. Donegal.
He said that meeting marked the opening of a campaign, the close of which would see the re-establishment of Ireland's National parliament in the old senate house in College Green. The struggle would be short and sharp,
but the result was a foregone conclusion. The one obstacle in the path of Ireland's freedom had been removed.
The House of Lords, which contemptuously rejected the Home Rule bill of 1893 had been obliged to drink the hemp. His power to impose its will upon the people of these countries was at an end, and the way was now clear, not only for Home Rule for Ireland, but for carrying the whole program of political and social reform for which the masses of the people had been clamoring for generations. Nothing could now defeat the hopes of Ireland except the foolishness of her own people. It was a matter of profound satisfaction to the representatives of a nation which had suffered unutterable wrong at the hands of the House of Lords that Ireland should have played so prominent a part in giving the death
blow to that house.

Home Rule dominated the fight
from beginning to end. It was to pass Home Rule that the vote bill was wanted, and the Lords had the limitation of seeing the vital division in their own house taken on the Home Rule immortal to the bill. The passing of the bill was one of the greatest constitutional victories ever won by the people.
It would never have been won but for the union of the democratic forces of Great Britain with those of Ireland.
The same union would, unless something unforeseen happened, place a home rule bill on the statute book
within the next two or three years.
Before many weeks a great home rule campaign would be in full swing in Sixty-five miles of wire already have been laid on the branch line of the Canadian Northern Railway according to Ed Burke who looks out for the grading work on this line, and was in the city on Saturday with his two sons. This brings the head of steel to a point about four miles west of the C. P. R. line between Calgary and Edmonton.

MANLY COMPLAINTS ABOUT DIRECTORY

BOOK PUBLISHED BY TELEPHONE DEPARTMENT NOT CATERPILLER ARGUMENT

Many complaints are heard at this time regarding failure of listings in the new telephone directory just issued, and there is a reason for such shortcomings. Another directory will have to be issued directly to supplement the one just issued, even if an entirely new book is not gotten out. The present book is just fifty percent less efficient than it should be. That is because it should have been issued promptly at the end of July and it does not put in appearance until the middle of September. A directory should be issued every three months to keep up with the listings for the increase in telephone numbers. At the rate of nearly one hundred a month there are changes and omissions constantly occurring. When the present directory came from the printer a month and a half before the efficiency of the book was destroyed just fifty percent. All names listed up until June 21st should be in the directory, even if it does come a month and a half early.

It is understood that radical steps are to be taken to prevent the repetition of this occurrence, and it is possible the department may seek to discount the contract for publication because of the extreme delay, thereby destroying the efficiency of the telephone. At any rate in the future printers will be compelled to guarantee delivery on time and pay a penalty for every day the books are overdue.

CITY IS GUARANTEED ABUNDANCE OF WATER
City Commissioners Anticipate No Further Difficulties So Far As Pumping Plant Is Concerned

There is no further danger of a shortage of water in Edmonton. At least the pumping plant, the breakdown department during the past few months is now in a condition of complete repair.

"We are now in a position to shut down one pump at a time, if necessary," said Commissioner Candy to the Capital this morning. "The water works are in first-class condition and I do not anticipate that any further trouble will arise. With both pumps available, the supply should be continuous throughout the winter, and in the event of one, the second may be taken back up."

May Not Appoint Commissioner
It is expected that the city council will tomorrow night appoint a new commissioner to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Commissioner Agar. The matter is to be informally discussed this afternoon and tomorrow, and a definite recommendation will in all probability be prepared for the meeting tomorrow night.

Street Car Advertising.
This morning the city commissioners took up the question of street car advertising. McLeod and Williams, who secured the contract last summer, during the Boulton regime, appeared before the board to discuss the matter in an informal way. They applied for the same terms as those of their former contract. These terms, however, the commissioners considered too favorable and a considerably higher figure will be expected hereafter.

PROGRAMME AT BAY CITY
Bay City, Mich., Sept. 18.—Bay City is decorated in the national colors in honor of President McKinley, who arrives here about 8 o'clock this evening and remains in the city over night. The programme for the evening will be a banquet, an open-air address at Wenhatch Park and a public reception.

MACHINISTS MEET IN DAVENPORT.
Davenport, Ia., Sept. 18.—The annual convention of the International Association of Machinists opened in this city today with about 200 delegates from the United States and Canada in attendance. The session promises to be unusually important, as the general strike threatened by the railroad machinists is to be the principal subject of consideration.

PRESIDENT TAFT IN MICHIGAN.
(Special to The Capital).
Detroit, Mich., Sept. 18.—President William McKinley will be in Detroit today with his family. The president's train reached Detroit at 7 o'clock this morning and will remain here until the evening. A large crowd was on hand to catch a glimpse of the national chief executive. The car was immediately switched around the city and taken to Pontiac, where the president delivered a short address and then returned to Detroit to attend the opening of the Michigan State Fair.

POLICE COURT.
William Burns who had been apprehended for attempting to utter a forged check, and was allowed out on bail failed to put in an appearance at the police court this morning when the case was to come up for trial, and another warrant has been issued for his arrest.

MAIL JIM was charged with selling cigars without a license, will come up for trial this afternoon.

Jesse James Allan was arrested for creating a disturbance yesterday, and was fined five dollars and costs. The disturbance arose out of a dispute over the election.

STRATHCONA LOCALS

For the second time the Conservative candidate in this constituency is to address electors of Strathcona. Mr. Campbell will be here tomorrow night to speak in the opera house and will have the advantage of having the last word of the campaign in this city. An invitation has been extended to Mr. Douglas to attend but as the Liberal nominee is filled for a meeting in London the same evening it is scarcely probable he will be represented on tomorrow night's platform here. Local Conservatives are making big preparations for Mr. Campbell's reception, having secured the band to lead a torchlight procession from the club rooms to the opera house. Mr. C. E. A. Simmonds of Lethbridge and other prominent speakers are down for address, while the Conservatives are making a truly stupendous effort to defeat Mr. Douglas. It is generally assumed that the late member will sweep the riding with the long and majority ever recorded here.

In the Methodist Church this evening a visiting missionary, Rev. C. W. Day, "The White Indian," will give an account of his thrilling adventures and experiences in North America. Rev. Day is an authority on matters relating to the southern continent, having been named as a missionary and government explorer among the almost unknown Indians in South American mountains.

Mr. C. B. Sayer, travelling secretary of the Western Y. M. C. A., spoke at a meeting at the Young Men's Club Friday evening, devoting mainly to the possibilities of Y. M. C. A. work in Strathcona. He advised continuation of the work under present accommodations until next spring, when a new building should be inaugurated for the purpose of raising a substantial sum for a permanent building.

While nothing more than light rain fell in the city, Friday evening, residents in West Edmonton reported something akin to a cloudburst swept a portion of the district a few miles east of the city. The storm apparently lasted but a short time, but so heavy was the downpour that the grain remaining in the fields was washed away within ten minutes after the storm opened.

Mahaffy, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church of Calgary, and they will be at home here after October 1st, at 1115 Twenty-second street.
